

L1 – Educational Studies in Language & Literature

Guidelines for authors

PREPARING THE MANUSCRIPT

Submit a clean copy of the manuscript online to the L1-Educational Studies in Language and Literature website (<https://www.l1research.org/>) A manuscript can comprise several files.

Your manuscript may comprise materials (transcripts, documents etc.) in languages other than English and in scripts other than Latin. If so, however, be sure to add an English translation. Articles submitted must follow APA guidelines (see Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association . 7th edition. Washington, DC: APA 2020)<sup>1</sup>.

Use 12 pt. font for the final version of the article. Indicate emphasis by using italics; do not use bold. Do not right-justify the manuscript.

Title Page: Include title and subtitle, running head, authors' names, academic affiliation, and addresses, as well as e-mail addresses. Submit the title page in a separate file to keep the manuscript anonymized for review.

Abstract: Include a short (200 words or fewer) abstract of the manuscript. Below the abstract, include about five key words that identify the main topics of the paper.

Article: The article begins on the first page after the abstract page. We recommend that the article is no longer than 10.000 words (reference list excluded). If the article exceeds this length, the editor may ask you to shorten it. Please also be aware that review procedures may take longer for longer articles.

Footnotes and Endnotes: Avoid using footnotes or endnotes in your manuscript.

References: Provide bibliographical information on all (and only) citations in the running text in the References section. The References section appears at the end of the article, beginning on a separate page, after the running text. Please make sure that you follow APA guidelines (see above). If you include titles in a language other than English, add, directly next to the title, a translation of the title into English between [square brackets].

As your article will be indexed by DOI, DOI numbers must be inserted in the References section wherever applicable. You may easily achieve this by copying the reference list and pasting it into <https://apps.crossref.org/simpleTextQuery>. The list will be returned with DOIs added, and you may paste it back to your paper.

If you quote titles written by yourself, have the reference anonymized. For instance, write “Author (2015)” in the References section in case you cite a paper you published 2015, and do not add other bibliographic data. Also, refer to the title by “(Author, 2015)” within the running text. The full reference will be inserted when your text gets published.

Tables, Figures, Audio- & Video materials: Tables and figures should follow APA guidelines (see APA handbook). Notably, number each table and each figure, and add captions. Tables must be prepared with MS Excel or with the “tables” facility of MS Word, so that editors can make adjustments if necessary. Except for size, all figures should appear exactly as you wish them to appear in print.

Note that it may be necessary to move tables and figures to another place when the text gets formatted. So, it is essential that you refer to each table/each figure by its number within the running text.

Audio files and videos can be included only in rare exceptional cases. Before submitting such files, please consult the editors.

Author’s Note: You may provide a brief Author’s note at the end of the body of the article (indicating acknowledgements, funding sponsors, and addresses for correspondence including e-mail).

Permissions: Written permission is required for all tables, figures, or quotations over 500 words, non-written materials from sources for which the author does not hold the copyright, and all quotations of any length from newspapers, radio, TV broadcasts, or magazines. Please submit evidence of permission with the manuscript. Permission must indicate the original author’s consent to electronic reproductions of this material. If written permission has not been obtained by the time your manuscript reaches final draft stage, copyrighted materials will be paraphrased or dropped.

A NOTE ON STYLE AND LANGUAGE

Authors should use the following style checklist as they prepare their manuscripts for final submission. Concerns not addressed in this list can be resolved by referring to the APA handbook.

- Write in clear (English) language accessible to the international reading audience of L1-Educational Studies in Language and Literature. Avoid educational jargon.
- Use the active voice throughout the document. This avoids unnecessary language.

Take care of linguistic correctness. If English isn’t your native language, we recommend that you have your manuscript checked by a native speaker before you submit it. Manuscripts which deviate vastly from basic linguistic standards will not be considered for review.

AUTHORS' OBLIGATIONS

If you use data in your research, obtain informed consent from your subjects and make sure that you conform to national laws as well as to ethical standards (see, e. g., <http://www.apa.org/ethics/code/>). Anonymize data carefully.

Be sure to give credit to all sources you used. Articles based on plagiarism will be rejected in any case. Recently, fragmented and/or duplicate publications have become a major concern (see <https://www.apa.org/pubs/authors/openletter.pdf>). In case of doubt, please contact the editors before submitting.
